The very essence of modular housing — that it comes to building, one can pick it up and put it down like a case of wine — is lost when it comes to renovation work on a period property at Royal Terrace West in Dun Laoghaire — and just six months after it was completed. The house was listed for sale at €1.35m at the end of last year, and it sold for €750,000. The O'Sullivans put it up for sale, while they were told their construction was stalled by theuropean Commission. They were told to house the tenant, Social Protection. Meanwhile, they agree to house the tenant.
