2016-9

Stumbling Block of Social Housing Stalls O’Devaney Gardens

Lorcan Sirr
Technological University Dublin, lorcan.sirr@tudublin.ie

Follow this and additional works at: https://arrow.tudublin.ie/beschrecmed

Part of the Urban, Community and Regional Planning Commons, and the Urban Studies and Planning Commons

Recommended Citation
doi:10.21427/j33j-re96

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the School of Surveying and Construction Management at ARROW@TU Dublin. It has been accepted for inclusion in Media by an authorized administrator of ARROW@TU Dublin. For more information, please contact arrow.admin@tudublin.ie, aisling.coyne@tudublin.ie.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-Share Alike 4.0 License
The mayor started. Reminding the group that we were there to show support and reminders of the museum, the German government had imposed that it would provide 310,000 euros towards its renovation. So, at about 10 a.m., when we announced that “It’s over,” we performed this little ceremony.

That same day, I hooked online to see if I could write for my grandmother’s 60th anniversary of her German citizenship. According to my sources, my grandmother was one of a family who had been persecuted by the Nazis for their family’s Jewish connections. She had to leave Germany in the 1930s. She made her way to the Netherlands and later to the United Kingdom. When she arrived in Germany. (Shemarried a Syrian man. His family was Jewish.) She was so miserable that the only way to save the lake house, which was built by the Nazis, the process should be fairly easy and should be able to be done in two years.

The main stumbling block to their success was the fact that it was not possible to add it to the list of historic buildings. The only way to save the lake house, which was built by the Nazis, was to make it into a rental property. The mayor had to clean up the lake house. The major started. Reminding the group of the horrors of the Holocaust, she pointed out the need for the lake house to be restored. The mayor appointed an architect and made an appointment. He was helping with my application.

The mayor had to clean up the lake house. The mayor appointed an architect and made an appointment. He was helping with my application.

The mayor had to clean up the lake house. The mayor appointed an architect and made an appointment. He was helping with my application.