Developers Hold Keys to Supply but They Can’t Control Demand

Lorcan Sirr
Technological University Dublin, lorcan.sirr@tudublin.ie

Follow this and additional works at: https://arrow.tudublin.ie/beschrecmed

Part of the Urban, Community and Regional Planning Commons, and the Urban Studies and Planning Commons

Recommended Citation

Sirr, L. (2015) Developers hold keys to supply but they can’t control demand. The Sunday Times 11.10.2015.

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the School of Surveying and Construction Management at ARROW@TU Dublin. It has been accepted for inclusion in Media by an authorized administrator of ARROW@TU Dublin. For more information, please contact yvonne.desmond@tudublin.ie, arrow.admin@tudublin.ie, brian.widdis@tudublin.ie.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-Share Alike 3.0 License.
D

o many students are leaving the economy by the thousands to make ends meet. The housing crisis is now a national crisis, affecting students in all parts of the country. The cost of living has increased dramatically, forcing many students to move in with friends or family. The government needs to take action to address this crisis and ensure that students have access to affordable housing.

The problem is particularly acute for female students, who are more likely to be in financial distress due to the high cost of living. The government needs to address this issue by providing more affordable housing options for students.

The government needs to take a more proactive approach to address the housing crisis. They need to invest in affordable housing and provide more support for students who are struggling to pay for rent.

The government needs to work with local authorities to ensure that students have access to affordable housing options. They need to work with landlords to ensure that they are providing safe and affordable housing to students.

The government needs to take action to address the housing crisis and ensure that students have access to affordable housing. They need to work with local authorities and landlords to provide more support for students who are struggling to pay for rent.