State Must play to Crowd on Renting or Face the Consequences

Lorcan Sirr

Technological University Dublin, lorcan.sirr@tudublin.ie

Follow this and additional works at: https://arrow.tudublin.ie/beschrecmed

Part of the Urban, Community and Regional Planning Commons, and the Urban Studies and Planning Commons

Recommended Citation

Sirr, L. (2016) State must play to crowd on renting or face the consequences. The Sunday Times
Enter the land of the giants

An avenue of towering redwoods dwarfs the squat neoclassical Emo Court in Co Laois, where more spectacular trees can be found in its parkland

The avenue of Emo Court, in Co Laois, is an estate of beauty and majesty. The main avenue is a sight to behold, particularly when you first arrive. It is a spectacular entrance to the estate, with the towering redwoods welcoming you to the house.

The avenue is over 100 years old and contains some of the largest redwoods in Ireland. They are over 300 feet tall and have a girth of nearly 20 feet. The trees are a testament to the care and attention that has been given to them over the years. The redwoods are a symbol of the estate's history and heritage.

The redwoods are not the only spectacular trees in the parkland. There are many other types of trees, including beech, oak, yew, and chestnut. The parkland is a haven for bird enthusiasts, with over 200 species of birds having been recorded. The gardens at Emo are open from April to September, and are open from 10am to 6pm daily.

The gardens are not just for the birds, however. They are also a haven for wildlife, with over 200 species of plants having been recorded. The gardens are home to a variety of insects, including butterflies, bees, and moths. The gardens are also a haven for reptiles, with over 20 species of reptiles having been recorded.

The gardens are also home to a variety of rare and endangered plants, including the giant redwood. The redwood is one of the largest trees in the world, and is a symbol of the estate's commitment to conservation.

In conclusion, the avenue of redwoods at Emo Court is a spectacular sight to behold. The redwoods are just one of the many natural wonders that can be found in the parkland. The gardens are a testament to the care and attention that has been given to them over the years, and are a haven for both birds and wildlife. The gardens are a must-see for anyone visiting Ireland.