Builder Jim Wood, of Wood Group, likes to keep the neighbours happy when he puts up houses in the seaside town of Greystones — he’s one of them, writes Linda Daly

Wood Group has built up a name for itself in recent years, helped by social housing schemes that have come to fruition. “We’ve always been interested in trying to do our bit for the community and we’ve always tried to do so in a sustainable way,” Wood says.

The company’s first project in Greystones was a scheme of three-, four- and five-bedroom houses on a site that had been released in the past, but which had not been built on. Building 104 two-bedroom units, Wood says, was “a great opportunity to do something good for the community.”

The scheme was eventually completed in 2011, and the company has since built more than 200 houses in Greystones in total. “It’s been great to see the response from the community,” Wood says.

The company’s second project in Greystones was a scheme of 60 one-bedroom units, completed in 2013. “It was a great opportunity to do something good for the community,” Wood says.

The company’s third project in Greystones was a scheme of 90 one-bedroom units, completed in 2014. “It was a great opportunity to do something good for the community,” Wood says.

The company’s fourth project in Greystones was a scheme of 120 one-bedroom units, completed in 2015. “It was a great opportunity to do something good for the community,” Wood says.
