1995

The DIT Examiner: the Newspaper of the Dublin Institute of Technology Students' Union April, 1995

DIT Students' Union

Follow this and additional works at: https://arrow.tudublin.ie/ditsu

Part of the Communication Commons

Recommended Citation
DIT Students Union: The DIT Examiner April, 1995. DIT, 1995

This Other is brought to you for free and open access by the Dublin Institute of Technology at ARROW@TU Dublin. It has been accepted for inclusion in DIT Student Union by an authorized administrator of ARROW@TU Dublin. For more information, please contact yvonne.desmond@tudublin.ie, arrow.admin@tudublin.ie, brian.widdis@tudublin.ie.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-Share Alike 3.0 License
Students from every DIT site will this Thursday take over the massive Aer Lingus Sports Complex (ALSAA) for the institute’s first ever sports day. Final preparations are being made but everything seems to be going smoothly and the only truly unknown quantity concerns the students of the DIT. It is up to them to make the day a success.

It has been estimated that at least 1,000 DIT students will take part in 35 sports this Thursday. Joe McGrath, chairperson of the DIT’s sports committee said today that contingency plans have been made should the numbers be greater. Double decker buses will be operating a shuttle service to and from the complex, beginning at 10am from each college. They will operate roughly on an hourly basis.

"If people can’t get on the buses, they may decide that they aren’t going but we would be anxious that they get out there on their own steam. There’s a good bus service out to ALSAA," said Mr McGrath.

The event has already generated much interest across the DIT. As many as 400 soccer players will be involved and basketball also seems to be shaping up as one of the most popular events. Among the other sports will be martial arts, fencing, 10 pin bowling, rugby, snooker, hockey and there will also be some purely fun events such as roller skating and, if possible, rollerblading.

From a participation point of view, one of the most encouraging things for Joe McGrath is the level of interest from women. "We’re anxious that a lot of women try the sports and if they like it, we can put money and resources into some teams next year. We have identified this as a problem. We don’t have enough women participating seriously or in any great numbers in sport in the DIT. It tends to be male dominated. If we get more clubs, we can say, right, we’ll try to allocate funding fairly. I always see that sport should be an integral part of a student’s life, a right, not peripheral."

He is also trying to encourage those clubs that have received a lot of money from DIT Central Sports Committee to get involved in the sports day. "If they get involved the chances are that we will look favourably on them when they come looking for funding again. We want them to support DIT’s first ever sports day and if it is successful, there is no reason why we can’t run it as an annual event."

The emphasis is on fun and the day is primarily designed as a celebration of sport. To ensure the element of fun prevails, spot prizes will be given out if you score a particularly good goal or let in a lamp or a track. "We have a lot of DIT sports wear to give out, if you score a particularly good goal or let in a particularly bad one, we’ll give a spot prize."

The drama society from DIT Mountjoy square will also be involved, putting on their MAD award winning play a number of times and also engaging in "Macnas style events" during the day.

On a more serious level, the semi finals of the Gleeson Cup will be played on the day as will the first ever game between hockey and hurling teams, facilitated by newly designed hurleys and sliotars.

Participants in the sports day are advised to bring a tracksuit and a change of gear and to be prepared for some queuing.

"There may be queues for the toilets and the showers but sports people in the DIT are used to queuing."

The event has received sponsorship with Guinness providing a cup for the winners in the soccer and also kegs of beer which they will distribute to various local pubs, not to ALSAA itself. At the end of the day there will be a disco in Powers hotel.

Mr McGrath is very optimistic that the day will be a sporting success and that it will deliver a strong message to DIT’s Governing body.
Time To Talk

The vexed issue of women's autonomy and women's rights officers in individual Students' Unions is simply not going to go away. There are too many people deeply committed on both sides for any kind of quick fix solution. For some it is a fundamental issue and therefore anything less than the firmest of stands would be unimaginable and unexpected.

USI is committed to women's autonomy and it wants to see women's autonomy and Women's Rights Officers in member unions. For DIT, this is somewhat problematic, given the last November the students voted in a referendum to replace the position of WRO and Anti-Discrimination Officer with that of a more general equals officer. This is the mandate from the students and it cannot and should not be ignored.

So there is an impasse, and because of the nature of the debate, emotion sometimes threatens to take the place of cold logic. It is then that greater divisions are created and these must be avoided. At a time when USI, individual unions and students generally seem to have a sense of renewed power, and plans for the future are being made, the last thing anyone needs is an overwhelming feeling that on at least one very important matter, people are not on the same side, or not even talking constructively about it.

No-one likes to be told that their way is wrong or unfair or restrictive. Such language gets the blood boiling and that is when people stop listening to each other. Each side in this emotive debate must listen to the other, and if not fully accepting what is said, at least understand why it is being said. Only then can any progress can be made and perhaps a compromise can be reached. If either side is not interested in compromise, then this debate could result in serious rifts.

Right now, it is openness that is needed, not secrecy, or even perceived secrecy, because in such an atmosphere people have a tendency to dig in and not move an inch, and if that happens, then little else will. Care, circumspection and clear sightedness are needed here. Those who attended Congress this year saw more passion generated over this issue than any other and there must be passion present; it strengthens and drives people. But it must be tempered with the logic of practicalities.

Sports Day

Picture the scene: over 1,000 DIT students engaged in 35 different sports in a complex that probably has no match in this country. Ideal facilities, huge playing areas and a concentration of events that is a joy to behold. Enjoy Thursday, you may not see its like again for a long time.

The reality for sports people in the DIT is radically different from this idyllic scenario: sport in DIT is turning up at borrowed pitches to find matches cancelled; it is organising everything around availability subject to the whims of others; it is being unintentionally embarrassed by visiting colleges when pennants are received and none are given; it is poor levels of participation because for many the incentive is just not there. That is not to say that DIT has been unsuccessful in sport; it has, but it should be more. It could be.

DIT sports day will give students a brief, tantalising taste of what they should have a modern, well equipped dedicated sports facility that is easily accessible. It should be a great day and if you are still undecided about whether or not to go, think of this: the more people that attend, the more attention that DIT's Governing Body will have to pay. The day itself will represent a celebration of sport; it will also act as a timely reminder to those with the money of the current hopeless state of sporting facilities for DIT students. It is a chance that should not be wasted.

The Word Shop

DIT Students Union
Secretarial Service Bureau

Typing (laser printed) only 85p per page.

Fax Service, Thesis Binding

The Word Shop, DIT Kevin Street College of Technology
9.30am-5pm Monday to Friday

Sport was highlighted recently when a visiting American university team presented the the DIT opponents pennants and memorabilia and received nothing in return. They were well looked after in terms of hospitality but it was, says Mr McGrath, embarrassing.

He hopes that the day will mark the beginning a push for new facilities for the DIT, but the immediate priority is the day itself.

"It should be a very memorable day in the year for anyone who attends. Even if you don't play, go out and support your college team. Every site will be participating in a major sporting event."

Clarifications

Should you encounter anything you feel is in need of clarification in this, or any other issue of the DIT Examiner, please contact the editor and any such matters shall then be clarified in the subsequent edition.
Josephine Rogers could not have had a better start. Not a week in her new role as GAA Development Officer in the DIT and what happens? The DIT's Gaelic Football team wins the prestigious Trench cup in Cork. The win ensured that sport in general and Gaelic sports in particular will have a high profile within the institute in the near future, a situation which can only be enhanced by the upcoming DIT sports day.

"It was a great bonus and a great start for me, in my very first week in the job. It made it a lot easier for me because if you lose and lose and lose, you eventually get fed up, you need a win to put the boost back in. The thing now is to hold onto the cup, we have to fight to keep it next year and let them see that it's not just a fluke.

"My main objective would be to have a male team from each college and possibly to have a Northside/Southside ladies' team in Gaelic football and possibly to have a hurling team from each college and with campaña, well see how it goes, possibly a northside/southside again. It sounds very bleak for the ladies, but the thing is that the men's has been set up for so long, there's actually a lot of people involved, but with the ladies it's only going to be set up from next term onwards."

The first hurdle is developing the interest and the building from that. Ms Rogers believes this to be single greatest difficulty facing the DIT in terms of its sporting future. She believes the interest is there among the students; it merely needs to be encouraged, and part of this encouragement is of course the existence of a dedicated sports facility. Her immediate priority, however, is the upcoming sports day, for whose GAA activities she has full responsibility.

"So that is keeping me busy. After that, I'll more than likely spend the time until the end of May getting ready for next year, talking about fixtures in Croke Park, talking about budgets, drawing up budgets, looking at last year's figures, seeing what needs to be improved upon."

She believes the DIT has great potential as a force in college sport and cites the Trench Cup victory as an example of what can be achieved even without a sports ground.

"It just shows the level of skill in the players and the quality that is in the team. They are a credit to their trainers from their individual counties, their club level and of course back to the DIT level. They are a great unit and they play well together. It's a big bonus to win when you don't have your own ground. You're fishing around for a ground all the time. It takes a lot of work and dedication and they're succeeding at the same time. There's a lot of credit due to them."

This Year's Trench Cup-winning team

(Kevin Street) Graham Kinan, Ray Greynan, Darren Hannan, Dara O'Shea, Damien Burke, Richard Kealy, Dennid Gallagher, Paul Collan, (Bolton Street) Mark Johnson, Oliver McNulty, Gerry Sheridan (captain on the day). Fergal Spillane, John O'Connor, Mick Quinn, Damien Divers (team captain), (DIT Mountjoy Square) Tony Byrne, Ronan Mooney, (Aungier Street) Barry Farrelly, Mick Byrne.

Gerry Sheridan proudly displays the Trench Cup

NOBODY OFFERS D.I.T. STUDENTS A BETTER COACH SERVICE FROM DUBLIN.

SAMPLE STUDENT MONTHLY RETURN FARES

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Destinations</th>
<th>Fare (£)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>WATERFORD</td>
<td>£8.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>WEXFORD</td>
<td>£8.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>GALWAY</td>
<td>£9.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>BALLINA</td>
<td>£10.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DUNGARVAN</td>
<td>£10.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SLIGO</td>
<td>£10.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>BELFAST</td>
<td>£10.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>LIMERICK</td>
<td>£10.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DONEGAL</td>
<td>£11.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ENNIS</td>
<td>£11.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>LETTERKENNY</td>
<td>£11.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CORK</td>
<td>£12.00</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Fares correct at time of going to press.
Connery's Lost Cause

Sean Connery has become a very lazy actor. I don't mean this in terms of his work rate because he certainly turns out enough films to keep him in golf courses but far too often these days he seems to be on auto pilot, relying on an authoritative voice, a handsomely lined face and his superstar status. He has never been the most versatile of actors, but always powerful and commanding on the screen, a true film star. However, his last really memorable role was in Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade. Since then he has appeared in a series of big budget films, none of which was particularly memorable. Add his latest, Just Cause to the list. In it he plays Paul Armstrong, a Harvard law professor, authoritative, respected and an implacable critic of the death penalty. He is approached by the desperate grandmother of a Bobby Earl, a young black man about to be executed for the brutal murder eight years previously of a little white girl in the Florida everglades. In the opening sequence we see the supposed killer (Blair Underwood) being beaten while in custody and the pleas to let the matter lie are rejected by Tanny Brown, the Heat of the Night sheriff (played by Laurence Fishburne), who brought Bobby Earl to justice all those years ago, beating out of him a confession along the way.

Armstrong finds himself in the same territory so memorably covered by Sidney Poitier in In the Heat of the Night: small town suspicion, intimidation and a local police force convinced that they have the right man and that the newcomer is simply opening old wounds and causing trouble. They are led by Tanny Brown, played by the excellent Laurence Fishburne, a seemingly unscrupulous cop who brought Bobby Earl to justice all those years ago, beating out of him a confession along the way.

Ignoring the veiled threats and the pleas to let the matter lie Armstrong, perhaps feeling alive for the first time in too long, begins to look into the case, and having met with the well spoken and reasonable Bobby Earl decides that he will see justice done. To reveal any more would be to reveal too much because the film relies so heavily on a series of twists and revelations. In any case, its being billed as one of those "Please don't run up and down the queue for the next showing shouting the incredible plot twists!" films. I don't envisage any great queue either. Just Cause has a terrific cast, aside from the leads there is Ned Beatty, Ruby Dee, Daniel J. Travanti and Ed Harris, but they are not enough to make this more than an average thriller. It skirts the interesting issues it raises, about the arrogance of an well educated man among the locals, racism and even the ongoing debate on the death penalty itself, but it is more concerned with being a conventional thriller. That's not a bad thing in itself, but it brings nothing new to the genre; there's much borrowing going on and we even get a convicted serial killer alternatively taunting and advising the protagonist (Ed Harris in scenery chewing mode). The film also redresses its most interesting character to the background until the end. Fishburne's cop is more complex than anyone else in the film, more real, a small town man with small town prejudices but great self belief, much like Rod Steiger's sheriff in the aforementioned In the Heat of the Night. However, he is very much secondary to Connery's central professor.

Sluggish direction from Arne Glimcher doesn't help matters. There are plenty of surprises in the film but whenever we get close to one, he telegraphs it, building towards it so deliberately that it is never as eye opening as it should be. Think of a road worker frantically waving a red flag as the car races by towards the hole in the road half a mile ahead.

It's not a bad film; it's just not good enough.

Forrest Gump

Back bearing the weight of too many Oscars is this staggeringly successful mediocrity that told an awful lot of Americans what they wanted to hear. Tom Hanks (owner of one of the film's Oscars) is Gump, a simple, decent and innocent man who changes the lives of more people than he would ever know. The film charts his life as a series of incredible and catalytic events, as he meets all manner of famous people, oblivious of the effect he has on them. All he wants to do is marry Jenny (Robin Wright) and live a simple life.

Nothing succeeds like success and this has become one of the most successful films of all time. It is not, however, for the even mildly cynical among you for its sentiment factor is completely off the scale and, though hotly denied by the makers, there is a very conservative message to be drawn from it. Good entertainment, but the best film of the year? I don't think so.

Natural Born Killers

This one is running in the IFC for members only. The one man hyperspace machine Oliver Stone, has done it again. He has managed, helped in no small way by some hysterical media coverage of supposed 'copycat killings' to get everyone into a lather over one of his films. Natural Born Killers is audacious and technically dazzling and audacious but dramatically, it's useless and even what he wanted to say in his own heavy handed way, the film just misses the mark.

Woody Harrelson and Juliette Lewis (a one note actress and what a whining note it is) play two white trash types who go on a killing spree across America, followed and then feted by the media. Stone is pointing the finger at the media, the voyeurism of the viewer and the obsession with death just far enough removed, but because the film is so over the bloody top and visually inconsistent, it is easy to lose interest. Stone has a good point but he simply shouts too much.
Scene and Heard

Darragh O'Toole wipes the hair from his eyes, shelves his bone idleness and gives the critical once over to music matters in the city

Adam Ant - The Olympia

"Something old, something new, something borrowed and something crude..." so the man said. Unless you are talking about Lou Reed or Tom Waits who exponentially improve and diversify, old is definitely gold. The new material smacks of someone trying to be with the times without the slightest idea of what the times are about. Most of the songs were sex related (hello? people aren't so easily shocked any more...) and one even called Vampire (yawn). However, sporting a biker jacket (as well as an "I'm a tourist" type Ireland t-shirt and a naff Paddy's Day badge which we shall try hard to overlook) and silver trousers, Mr Ant strutted and posed, in what seemed a very contrived fashion, his way through the mixed bag to immense audience satisfaction. Many die-hard fans sang along with songs I hadn't heard before. It must be said, though, that justice was done to the classics. Antmusic was there, as well as Viva le Rock, Kings of the Wild Frontier and Stand and Deliver. "nostalgia Charming was overlooked.

To The Big Wigs

The President was a good night's entertainment. The money you have bought his new album?... you might be a bit of a tourist. "I'm a tourist" type Ireland t-shirt and a naff Paddy's Day badge which we shall try hard to overlook and silver trousers, Mr Ant strutted and posed, in what seemed a very contrived fashion, his way through the mixed bag to immense audience satisfaction. Many die-hard fans sang along with songs I hadn't heard before. It must be said, though, that justice was done to the classics. Antmusic was there, as well as Viva le Rock, Kings of the Wild Frontier and Stand and Deliver. "nostalgia Charming was overlooked.

DIT Plays Host

To The Big Wigs

The President, Professor of Moral Theology in St. Patricks College Maynooth, recently gave a talk in DIT Kevin St. which was attended by the US Ambassador to Ireland, Jean Kennedy-Smith who is pictured above with, from left, Mr. Michael Martin, Mr. McDonagh and Dr. Brendan Goldsmith, the President of the DIT.

Administering To Students’ Needs

The Administration Society, D.I.T. Mountjoy Square, proved to be a resounding success this year, living up to the expectations of previous years. It was an eventful year with two informal events within the college and the formal Business Breakfast, which was held in Jurys Hotel Ballsbridge on the 4th of March. The talks given in the college by Judge Mauro Roach on the Irish Legal System and Mr. Paul Gibney, National Sales Manager for A.T.Cross, on Promotional Management were welcomed by D.I.T. Mountjoy Square students who turned out in large numbers for both events. The Business Breakfast in Jurys proved to be a success with, a total of one hundred and twenty business people, seventy students from the Administration and Marketing course and thirty lecturers attending the event. The main objective of the Breakfast was to facilitate contacts between third year students of the course and members of the business community. These contacts constitute an important element of the Links Placement Programme which provides the placement positions central to the Administration and Marketing course. An impressive feature of the breakfast was the multi-media package developed by Gordon Murphy, a DIT Mountjoy Sq. graduate. This gave the event a professional dimension that was designed to impress the business guests present.

The guest speaker, Mr. Gerard O'Neill, gave an interesting talk, entitled "Ireland 2000 - The Marketing Opportunity". He traced the likely developments in business generally and professional careers in particular over the medium term future, warning that the only certain known fact about the future is that it doesn't, as yet, exist.

The Administration Society greatly appreciates the help it received throughout the year from lecturers, fellow students and particularly Stacy McCarthy, Links Placement Officer, DIT Mountjoy Sq. The work of the Society would have been extremely difficult without the strong support and encouragement of the Director, Mr. Paul O'Sullivan.

Any further information

Stacy McCarthy, Links Placement Officer PH: 4024121

Cheap Thrill!

Life is full of thrills.... some cost more than others.

If you enjoy the thrill of live sports, the buzz of good social facilities and excellent value for money, Fairyhouse Racecourse offers you an unbeatable opportunity.

You can become a junior member of Fairyhouse Club for only £25 (two members for £40) if you are under 24.

For more information and an application form, send your name and address to:

Fairyhouse Club Ltd., Ratoath, Co. Meath.
Telephone: 01-825 6167

New junior membership includes private bar and catering facilities.

Fairyhouse FAIRYHOUSE CLUB LIMITED HOME OF IRISH NATIONAL HUNT STEEPLECHASING
Congress Motions Rock The Boat

After the general consensus that passed for USI National Congress last year, hopes for this year, in terms of lively debate, were not on a plane that could be called elevated. Sure, there had been two successful demonstrations in the DIT and the march on Steenng some very unhelpful comments. But Alisou Flanagan's channels. I mentioned it to reception.

The issue of the abolition of fees came up in the afternoon session. The abolition of fees was welcomed but some speakers made the point that for many the biggest problem was remaining in college after fees were paid. Once again, all seemed to be going swimmingly, but lurking at ED 7 was a DIT motion on University Funding which noted that there is a discrepancy between the way Universities and colleges are regarded, by the Government and the General Public. It seemed a likely candidate for the now standard lively debate between DIT and UCD, with one being accused of snobbery and the other of reverse snobbery. Before this, however, all debate was suspended while the USI election results were announced. The full results are printed elsewhere, but the surprise was the margin by which Colm Keaveney, current Deputy President, won the Presidency over Paul MacMenamin, president of Queens students' union. It was a clearly emotional Keaveney who heard that he had won.

The first full day of Congress, held in the rather isolated Two Mile Inn, some four miles from Limerick city, did not begin auspiciously, following as it did the first full night of drinking (the absence of any Jack Daniels was duly noted). Many found it difficult to get up on time and many of those that did surface had unshapely breakfast hair. As steering committee member Nick Reilly so memorably put it: "The time that's wasted stays wasted." It wasn't to be the first time that poor attendance at the early sessions was noted.

It was a quiet enough beginning, with little in the way of controversy. Only an NCAD motion on mailings (hazardously enough) managed to become contentious. The source of greatest annoyance before the afternoon was, however, the soup served for lunch, greyish looking swill of unidentifiable origin. The TV in my room still had two channels. I mentioned it to reception.

The post session sessions in the bar are very important in Congress. It is here that debates are continued informally, that delegates with opposing views make their peace. Ultimately, around 4am, many are unable to continue these discussions, but this is not for students were underfunded, they could get better jobs than any UCD graduate.

The issue of the abolition of fees came up in the afternoon session. The abolition of fees was welcomed but some speakers made the point that for many the biggest problem was remaining in college after fees were paid. Once again, all seemed to be going swimmingly, but lurking at ED 7 was a DIT motion on University Funding which noted that there is a discrepancy between the way Universities and colleges are regarded, by the Government and the General Public. It seemed a likely candidate for the now standard lively debate between DIT and UCD, with one being accused of snobbery and the other of reverse snobbery. Before this, however, all debate was suspended while the USI election results were announced. The full results are printed elsewhere, but the surprise was the margin by which Colm Keaveney, current Deputy President, won the Presidency over Paul MacMenamin, president of Queens students' union. It was a clearly emotional Keaveney who heard that he had won.

The first full day of Congress, held in the rather isolated Two Mile Inn, some four miles from Limerick city, did not begin auspiciously, following as it did the first full night of drinking (the absence of any Jack Daniels was duly noted). Many found it difficult to get up on time and many of those that did surface had unshapely breakfast hair. As steering committee member Nick Reilly so memorably put it: "The time that's wasted stays wasted." It wasn't to be the first time that poor attendance at the early sessions was noted.

It was a quiet enough beginning, with little in the way of controversy. Only an NCAD motion on mailings (hazardously enough) managed to become contentious. The source of greatest annoyance before the afternoon was, however, the soup served for lunch, greyish looking swill of unidentifiable origin. The TV in my room still had two channels. I mentioned it to reception.

The post session sessions in the bar are very important in Congress. It is here that debates are continued informally, that delegates with opposing views make their peace. Ultimately, around 4am, many are unable to continue these discussions, but this is not for porate the role of WRO and that autonomy offered women a chance to be represented fairly. Most of the DIT delegates, male and female, were equally keen to take a stand, one of the main points being that in the aftermath of the abolition of WRO, female participation in DITSU had increased significantly.
Others said that the equilisation position was capable of dealing with issues concerning women. Helen Ryan, Deputy
President of DIT Kevin Street Students'
Union, dismissed, delivering an impasioned speech in favour of the position of WRO.

The debate went on for a long time; it was clearly the most divisive issue of the weekend and it wasn't pleasant. Deeply felt beliefs were challenged, emotion took centre stage for a while and even by the end of the weekend, some bad feeling remained. The issue needs to be discussed, for if it remains bottled up it will faster, but, it must be constructive debate it any resolution is to be reached. There is much work to be done.

The congress dinner and disco that followed mended some fences, with the drinking continuing assiduously until dawn for some. Thankfully, no-one became convinced that a fire hose would be better employed as a latarn, or that a naked dash through the hotel would be the height or merriment.
Malcolm Byrne did have his tie around his head, however. The TV in my room still had no channels. I mentioned it to reception.

Sunday was the day for guest speakers and good-bye speeches. David Adams from the UDP and Sinn Féin Councillor Mike McKee spoke about the ongoing peace process while Mary
Cullen from St Patrick's College
Maynooth gave a woman's and historian's perspective. All three were listened to carefully but perhaps none moreo than Mr Adams, who spoke quietly and firmly about Unionist wishes and fears in the wake of the cessation of violence and made some interesting points. For years, he said, working class Unionists had been exploited because of their loyalty to the union and working class J catholics had been exploited because of their perceived disloyalty. An old style Stormont parliament would be just as unacceptable as a United Ireland. Mr McKee said that the new arrangements would have to be negotiated by the peoples of Ireland and that Sinn Féin was willing to discuss.

At Congress '94, the farewell speeches were fluffly affiar. Not so this year.
The passion of Saturday had not completely abated and Kate Fearon delivered an angry, pointed speech that left nothing to the imagination. Opposing delegates could only sit in stony silence. It was further indication, as if necessary of the distance that needs to be travelled.

Congress 1995 will be remembered as a livelier one than '94's, but also as one that divided even further those who are on opposing sides of the WRO issue. Colours were pinned firmly to masts and they aren't about to be lowered and this is part of what Congress is about. It was a tough weekend for many delegates, far from the extended pins up that some may imagine it to be, but at least there was debate and people were prepa red to stand up there and make a point, even if it was an unpopular one.
At the end of the weekend, the TV in my room will had no channels. I didn't bother mentioning it to reception.
Jewish people living in Ireland have declined in recent years because of The report says that the numbers of who were subjected to racist behaviour. sense, that is Asian, African, Middle Eastern), 1,800 Jewish people and 22,000 'Travelling People'. It cites such examples as Jewish shops being attacked, a black British man and his Irish wife being intimidated so much that they left the country and a number of accounts from Vietnamese refugees couples by the dominant Catholic and Travelling community. It couldn't happen here.

The report, Racism and Intolerance in Ireland was commissioned by the National Youth Council Of Ireland on behalf of the Youth Campaign Against Racism, Xenophobia, Anti-Semitism and Intolerance. It says that approximately one per cent of the Irish population belongs to a racialised community. This figure incorporates "approximately 20,000 black people (in the broadest sense, that is Asian, African, Middle Eastern), 27,000 black people and 22,000 'Travelling People'. It cites such examples as Jewish shops being attacked, a black British man and his Irish wife being intimidated so much that they left the country and a number of accounts from Vietnamese refugees were subjected to racist behaviour. The report says that the numbers of Jewish people living in Ireland have declined in recent years because of instances of anti-Semitism, as well as "the difficulties posed to inter-marrying couples by the dominant Catholic and cultural ethos, and because of emigration". Not surprisingly the report also highlights the incidence of attacks on the Travelling community. It describes them as the largest ethnic minority in Ireland, points out that they have a consistently shorter life expectancy than the settled population and that few attend second level school despite the minimum school leaving age of 15.

The Youth Campaign against Racism, Xenophobia, Anti-Semitism and Intolerance is based on the recognition of the significance of the role of young people, now and in the future, in implementing and maintaining anti-racist and tolerant structures and attitudes in our society and the need at all levels to make a strong commitment to their education and development in the future. With this in mind, the report recommends that school curriculum promote critical reflection on the issue of racism and intolerance and that the extension of the Youth Exchange and other related initiatives be used as a means of promoting youth participation in developing positive relationships between these traditions. It calls for increases in Development Education spending nationally and the introduction of anti-racist training for youth workers, teachers at both primary and second level, as well as social and community workers, government officials and public servants working in areas where discrimination is likely to be encountered.

Racism is alive and unhealthily well and living in Ireland according to a report just published.

The report, Racism and Intolerance in Ireland was commissioned by the National Youth Council Of Ireland on behalf of the Youth Campaign Against Racism, Xenophobia, Anti-Semitism and Intolerance. It says that approximately one per cent of the Irish population belongs to a racialised community. This figure incorporates "approximately 20,000 black people (in the broadest sense, that is Asian, African, Middle Eastern), 1,800 Jewish people and 22,000 'Travelling People'. It cites such examples as Jewish shops being attacked, a black British man and his Irish wife being intimidated so much that they left the country and a number of accounts from Vietnamese refugees couples by the dominant Catholic and cultural ethos, and because of emigration". Not surprisingly the report also highlights the incidence of attacks on the Travelling community. It describes them as the largest ethnic minority in Ireland, points out that they have a consistently shorter life expectancy than the settled population and that few attend second level school despite the minimum school leaving age of 15.

The Youth Campaign against Racism, Xenophobia, Anti-Semitism and Intolerance is based on the recognition of the significance of the role of young people, now and in the future, in implementing and maintaining anti-racist and tolerant structures and attitudes in our society and the need at all levels to make a strong commitment to their education and development in the future. With this in mind, the report recommends that school curriculum promote critical reflection on the issue of racism and intolerance and that the extension of the Youth Exchange and other related initiatives be used as a means of promoting youth participation in developing positive relationships between these traditions. It calls for increases in Development Education spending nationally and the introduction of anti-racist training for youth workers, teachers at both primary and second level, as well as social and community workers, government officials and public servants working in areas where discrimination is likely to be encountered.

It Couldn't Happen Here?

DIT Students Union

THE IRISH TIMES

DITSU Simplex

CROSSWORD

Competition

PRIZE: First 3 correct entries drawn will each receive a f20 gift voucher for DIT Students Union Shop.

RULES: Only open to members of the DIT colleges. Employees of DITSU and THE IRISH TIMES are not eligible to enter. No Photocopies - Entries close: Monday, April 20th

SEND TO: THE IRISH TIMES / DITSU, Crossword Competition, The DIT Examiner, (to be dropped into local Union office)

NAME

COLLEGE

YEAR

COURSE

STUDENT NO.

ACROSS

8. Proud, overbearing. (8)
9. Made repairation, expiated. (6)
10. Three times. (6)
11. Deign of interwoven letters. (8)
12. Sudden involuntary spasm emitting breath through the nose. (6)
13. 'Is a turn that makes one go around in the nude?. (8)
15. Imitation, counterfeit. (4)
17. West Indian folk-song. (7)
19. Enter uninvited and unwelcome. (7)
22. Walk through water. (4)
24. Tenure held without rent etc. (8)
27. Incest penalty for transgression. (6)
29. Artist in stone, metal etc. (8)
30. In the direction of. (6)
31. Stoppage of blood circulation. (6)
32. Emphasis or strain. (6)

DOWN

1. Mischievous, unkempt child. (6)
2. Courteously, with good manners. (6)
3. Without due regard. (8)
4. Power of endurance. (7)
5. Predatory sea-bird. (6)
6. Large eel. (6)
7. Pale purple, sweet smelling flowers. (8)
14. Slid backwards to please RD. (4)
16. In the middle of, among. (4)
18. Long loud cry, of laughter or grief. (8)
20. Undue favouritism towards one's relatives. (8)
21. Famous. (8)
23. Where one lives. (7)
25. Join up. (6)
26. Dull in perception, stupid. (6)
28. Emphasis or strain. (6)

THE IRISH TIMES

STUDENT PRICE

55p

Download

The Irish Times

THE IRISH TIMES

THE STUDENTS NEWSPAPER

Last issue's winners were:

Sorcha Ní Fhailte (DIT Kevin St.)
Nicola Evans (DIT Bolton St.)
David Collinane (DIT Kevin St.)

COMPETITION NO. 6
Results of the DIT Students’ Unions elections

Overall President of DITSU:
- total poll: 3458, spoiled votes: 107, total valid poll: 3351, quota: 1676
- Byrne, Colman: 2059
- Crosbie, Ciaran: 1292
Byrne, Colman elected

DIT Bolton Street:
- Position: Site President
  - total poll: 705, spoiled votes: 6, total valid poll: 699
  - Flanagan, Alison: 631
  - Yes: 651
  - No: 68
  - Flanagan, Alison elected

- Position: Deputy Site President/Welfare Officer
  - total poll: 747, spoiled votes: 23, total valid poll: 724, quota: 363
  - Costello, Colin: 401
  - Wade, Marie: 192
  - Wall, Rachel: 154
  - Costello, Colin elected

DIT Kevin Street:
- Position: Site President
  - total poll: 782, spoiled votes: 7, total valid poll: 775, quota: 388
  - Gordon, Reg: 336
  - Ryan, Helen: 439
  - Byrne, Helen elected

- Position: Deputy Site President/Welfare Officer
  - Bohan, Mark: 380
  - Foley, Ian: 349
  - Bohan, Mark elected

DIT Mountjoy Square
- Position: Site President
  - total poll: 659, spoiled votes: 18, total valid poll: 641, quota: 341
  - Lee, Mark: 567
  - Yes: 567
  - No: 113
  - Lee, Mark elected

- Position: Deputy President
  - total poll: 701, spoiled votes: 26, total valid poll: 675, quota: 338
  - O’Donovan, Niamh: 318
  - Staunton, Padraig: 357
  - O’Donovan, Niamh elected

  - Position: Entertainments Officer
    - Burke, Derek: 297
    - Burke, Liam: 208
    - Burke, Derek elected

  - Position: Clubs & Societies Officer
    - Hegarty, Daragh: 203
    - Costello, Colin: 199
    - Hegarty, Daragh elected

  - Position: Public Relations Officer
    - Moore, Pat: 202
    - Moore, Pat elected

  - Position: Part time Students Officer
    - White, Robbie: 139
    - White, Robbie elected

- Position: Employment Officer
  - McCormilla, Jennifer: 365
  - McCormilla, Jennifer elected

  - Position: Public Relations Officer
    - Condon, Adrienne: 350
    - Condon, Adrienne elected

DIT Aungier Street
- Position: Site President
  - total poll: 469, spoiled votes: 6, total valid poll: 463, quota: 218
  - Pidgeon, Sinéad: 314
  - No: 120
  - Pidgeon, Sinéad elected

  - Position: Deputy Site President/Welfare Officer
    - total poll: 447, spoiled votes: 13, total valid poll: 434, quota: 218
    - Wade, Dan: 414
    - No: 49
    - Wade, Dan elected

  - Position: Clubs & Societies Officer
    - Coleman, Meabh: 285
    - Coleman, Meabh elected

  - Position: Entertainments Officer
    - O’Donnell, Tom: 284
    - O’Donnell, Tom elected

  - Position: Public Relations Officer
    - Robinson, Olive: 283
    - Robinson, Olive elected

  - Position: Part time Students Officer
    - Weekes, Siobhan: 282
    - Weekes, Siobhan elected

DIT Chatham Row
- Position: Site President
  - total valid poll: 43
  - Collins, Sinéad: 42
  - No: 1
  - Collins, Sinéad elected

- Position: Deputy President/Welfare Officer
  - total valid poll: 41
  - Brandon, Michelle: 41
  - No: 0
  - Brandon, Michelle elected

- Position: Clubs & Societies Officer
  - Costello, Colin: 20
  - Costello, Colin elected

- Position: Entertainment Officer
  - O’Donnell, Derek: 20
  - O’Donnell, Derek elected

- Position: Public Relations Officer
  - Moore, Pat: 20
  - Moore, Pat elected

Regarding the positions of Irish Language Officer and Equality Officer, the E.S.C., having received a formal written complaint concerning the recent referendum on replacing the Anti-discrimination Officer and Women’s Rights Officer with the two above positions, have decided to seal the cast ballot papers pending the outcome of the aforementioned complaint.
"Sorry! I'm really really sorry. I couldn't find my wallet. The bus was late. And then there was the fire. And the flood. A plague of locusts. How late am I?"

Sound familiar? Those among you who have been left waiting for some inconsiderate, congenitally late swine in the icy cold or alone in a packed pub on a Friday night will have heard several versions of THE EXCUSE. Those among you who have offered any version of THE EXCUSE, know this: we don't believe you and it's not good enough.

Generally, there is no excuse for being late. If you arrange to meet someone at a certain time, be there at that time, or have a reason for being late. Not an excuse. Excuses are disgusting, useless and, by the way, only made more insulting when accompanied by puppy eyes and exaggerated shuffling of feet. Stop press: Such behaviour is neither charming nor endearing. In an ideal world, such puppy eyes would be plucked out and the shuffling feet nailed to the floor, severely limiting charming behaviour. As it is not an ideal world, the innocent victim of lateness usually responds in one of two ways, both equally worthy of scorn. There is the unadmitted sulk:

"You're angry. You've a right to be."

"I'm not angry," this delivered through lips pressed so tightly together, others will wonder where the sounds came from. The other is the maddening: "don't worry about it. I'm not here that long." What really should be said is something like: "you lazy, useless, thoughtless (add appropriate term of abuse). Do you do this on purpose or are you just to stupid to work out time/distance equations?"

Standing in the cold is not much fun at any time; standing in the cold pretending that you actually like it is a nightmare, especially when you have to avoid the rushes of other people and arrange for them to meet each other at a certain time. They wander up with eager and stupid grins, like some idiotic cocker spaniel that's just taken a stick and is determined to induce sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of sympathy. I would have more sympathy for a hopeless drunk who fell into a hole and broke his bottle of beer than for anyone, friend. Well, not me of course. Heh heh. You accept with a small degree of...
Lean O’Flaherty from St Patrick’s Avenue, Wicklow has won this year’s Flora Nutrition Award for post-graduate studies. The award, worth £6,000 is presented annually to the final year student who achieves the highest marks in the Trinity College/Dublin Institute of Technology B.Sc degree course in Human Nutrition and Dietetics.

Lean, who is 22, plans to use the award to undertake a Ph.D to investigate the effects of the amino acid, taurine, on the immune system of surgical patients.

Pictured is Lean O’Flaherty, and Siobhan Cleary, presenter of RTÉ’s CheckUp programme at the presentation, which took place in Dublin Castle recently.

Mountjoy Sq. Has Designs On Art

The 3rd-7th is the first ever Art & Design Week in the College of Marketing and Design. The intention is to bring to the forefront the wealth of creative artistic talent in the College. Artwork will be displayed in the College throughout the week, the fruition of the A & D Week competition which has a £300 first prize. The title of the competition is “I see said the blind man”. Events will include: all-day film showings (some of which have been created by the students in the college), Drama performances, live-music, Pub Pictionary, Fire Jugglers and a Fancy Dress Ball. The centre piece of the week should be the Optical - Effects Room in the college . . . not forgetting King Kong on the roof. The front of the building is also decorated by five 25ft long banners representing Art & Design courses in the college.

The week owes its existence to support from the DIT Social & Cultural Council, the College Director, Mr Paul O’Sullivan and the college Secretary Registrar, Miss Therese Grogan.

“I hope this event will go from strength to strength in future years. There is the potential that it could evolve into an all-campus DIT Arts Week. This year should only be the beginning.”

Greg Hughes

Trading On The Right Skills

DIT Bolton Street will act as a host to this year’s National Apprentice Competition. 80 of Ireland’s top apprentices will compete in this year’s competition which begins on April 3rd. The theme of this year’s competition is “In Pursuit of Excellence”.

The winner in each trade receives the Department Of Education's Silver Medal and an opportunity to represent Ireland in the Youth Skill Olympics (the international Vocational Training Competition) in Lyon, France, in October 1995.

3, South Anne St, Dublin 2.
Ph: 6774339

3, Nassau St, Dublin 2.
Ph: 6797797

DIT STUDENT SPECIALS

6" Ham & Cheese + Regular Beverage

6" Tuna + Regular Beverage

6" Subway Club + Regular Beverage

6" Irish Sausage + Regular Beverage

£2.00

Offer only applies on production of DIT Student card
Students from the DIT and from RTCs around the country descended upon the unassuming town of Letterkenny recently for the annual MAD (Music, Arts and Drama) festival.

Three DIT Colleges took part - Kevin Street, Mountjoy Square and Bolton Street. The trip was made by "luxury" coach for most and minibus for some lucky souls. The first night turned out to be as good as anticipated for most, and even better for some.

Next morning, everyone rose to rehearse and made their way to the main venues for the competition. The music sections were held in various pubs, the arts section took place in the community centre and the drama was held in a nightclub. The performances went smoothly, despite the fact that the entry from DIT Kevin Street, Of the Flesh, had no music at the disco, due to technical difficulties. They saved the day by superbly improvising an interesting version of "No Limits". When the day's events came to an end all headed to the pubs and proceeded to show Letterkenny what night life is all about.

When the day's events came to an end all headed to the pubs and proceeded to show Letterkenny what night life is all about.

Sunday brought, not surprisingly, a few hangovers, but all managed to make it to the prize giving where the DIT picked up four drama awards: Mountjoy Square won the award for Best Play and Best Original Play for "Me Hole". DIT Kevin Street's Sharleen O'Reilly won the best actress award. In 'Of The Flesh' and DIT Bolton Street won Best Direction for "Boobs, Balls and Catcalls". DIT Kevin Street also cleaned up in the poetry section, winning 1st (Mike Mulligan), 2nd (Annette Mahon) and 3rd (Sandra Ney) prizes.

Congratulations to all.

Yvonne White, Anne-Marie O'Brien and Sandra Ney, winners in this year's MAD Festival.

In 1994, the Women's Aid National Freephone Helpline received 6044 calls. The break down of the calls by the month reveals a very interesting statistic: the highest number of calls for one month, 854, was recorded in May, the same time that Roddy Doyle's screen drama, The Family, was being shown. It was at the time that the helpline number was advertised extensively throughout the national media. This statistic has reinforced the belief in the Women's Aid organisation that awareness of services and public discussion on violence against women in the home is a key factor in combating domestic violence.

With this in mind, Women's Aid last month announced a nation-wide Zero Tolerance campaign. The first part was a poster campaign and the second part has just been launched. It consists of a national petition which will be distributed throughout the country. The petition reads: "We the undersigned believe that women and children have the right to live free from the threat of violence and that zero tolerance of violence must be our goal".

Women's Aid is urging groups and individuals around the country to support the campaign by collecting as many signatures as possible. The final number will be presented to the Dáil in May.

At the launch of the campaign, Rosin McDermott, Chairwoman of Women's Aid, said: "The public awareness campaign is the first of its kind in the Republic of Ireland. We are now issuing a call for this type of public education to be recognised and used nationally. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to prioritise the prevention of crimes of violence against women and children. The Zero Tolerance campaign is an example of what can be done. We need the Government to pri