Length of contributions

Level3 is an online journal, so we are flexible with regard to the length of scientific/scholarly articles, reports and other items. The following guidelines should help authors:

Full scientific/scholarly articles and academic papers: 5,000 – 6,000 words including references and appendices.

Reports: up to 8,000 words, larger if approved by the editors.

Analytical think-pieces: 1,000 – 2,000 words.

Please submit items in Word without a track-changes setting.

We welcome images, video and inter-active media in addition to text.

Author names

Author name and approved affiliation should be included immediately following the title.

Where there are multiple authors Please check that all authors agree to submitting the item to Level3.

Email addresses of authors are required ONLY for communication with editors.

Abstract - A short abstract should follow author names.

Languages – authors who do not use either Irish or English as a first language may submit items in their first language provided there is an accurate English translation with it. We copy-edit and format the Irish and English versions only.

Copyright - Copyright remains with authors.

‘Second’ publications – authors may submit relevant items which have been published previously provided they have appropriate permissions. Such items are identified in Level3 Issues.

Ethical responsibility

Authors are responsible for the accuracy of their own writings and for ensuring that they have all relevant permissions to submit writing generated with others. Authors are responsible for any consequences that arise from content inaccuracies or from inadequate acknowledgements.

It is procedurally difficult to alter items after publication online, so Please do not ask!

Peer review

Articles may be peer reviewed if authors request it. Peer-reviewed articles are identified as such.

Style Guide – as outlined on the Level3 website <https://arrow.tudublin.ie/level3/>

Copy-editing and formatting will be done by the Level3 team.

Authors will normally receive a final version before publication and should normally confirm their approval of that version.
